

Views on Foreign Policy: U.S. Adults

From Wave 116 of the American Trends Panel

John Michaud, MA candidate in International Affairs

American University, Washington D.C.

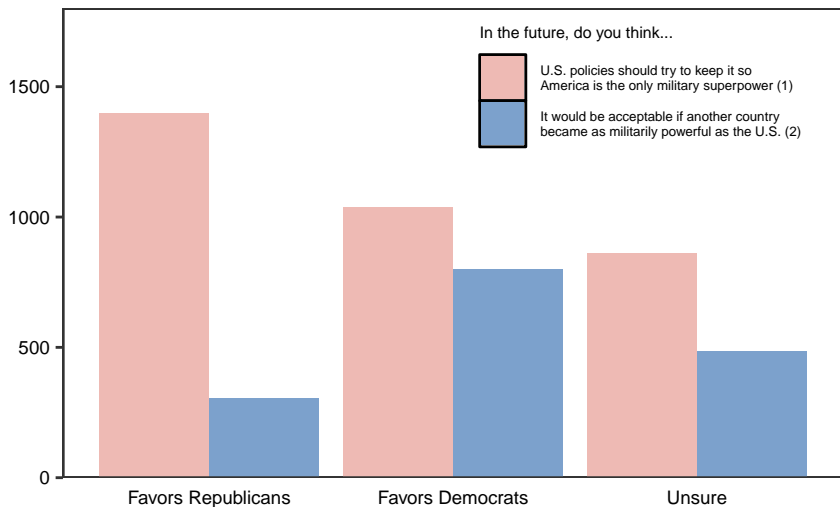

2024-03-25

Data

- ▶ American Trends Panel
 - ▶ online, nationally representative panel of American adults
 - ▶ created by the Pew Research Center and managed by IPSOS
 - ▶ asks questions on politics, public policy, and social issues
- ▶ Wave 116
 - ▶ responses from 5,726 randomly-selected panelists
 - ▶ collected between Oct. 10 and Oct. 16, 2022
- ▶ Analysis
 - ▶ check for partisan differences on foreign policy
 - ▶ Q1: respondents grouped by party preference
 - ▶ Q2: respondents grouped by party preference & Republicans grouped by Trump approval
 - ▶ two questions on U.S. foreign policy
 - ▶ Should the U.S. maintain its military supremacy?
 - ▶ Should the U.S. take allies' interest into account, or always pursue own its own interests?

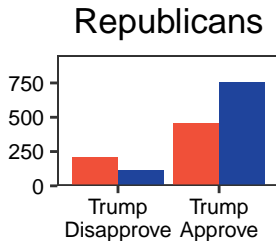

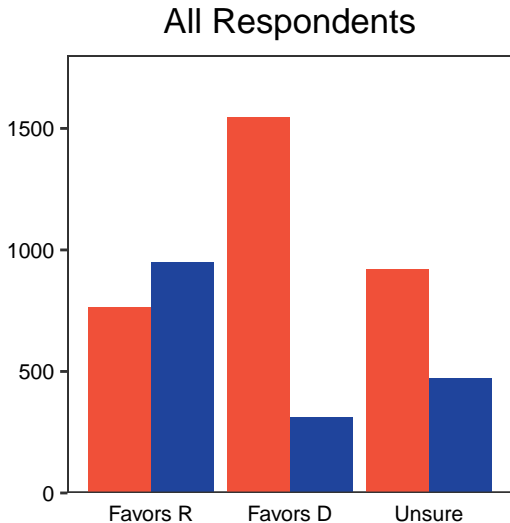

Support for U.S. military supremacy across party lines

All Respondents

Partisan differences on how U.S. should approach alliances

Republican opinion divided by Trump approval

The U.S...

